This Rule specifies that a variable rate instrument to be paid in 397 calendar days or less shall be deemed to have a maturity equal to the period remaining until the next readjustment of the interest rate.
- (2) This weighted average maturity calculation uses the final maturity of any floating rate instruments held in the portfolio to calculate the weighted average maturity for the pool.

Economic Commentary

Economic data remained mixed, with strong export and production data accompanied by weakness in consumer spending, employment and housing. Real GDP is now reported to have advanced 3.3% annualized in the second quarter, a remarkable result in the midst of what feels like a recession. The two major drivers of this growth were tax rebates and exports. Consumer spending continued to fall as the boost from rebates now fades, job losses showing no signs of abating and credit conditions tightening. The recent pullback in energy prices will offer some relief, but prices are still quite elevated. Although still weak, home sales have shown some signs of stabilization and the pace of decline in home prices appears to have slowed. Further, mortgage rates are moving higher and mortgage credit conditions are tightening even further. Treasury yields fell in August versus the previous month as volatility and weakness in housing and credit markets persisted.

The Fed will take some comfort from the drop in energy prices, the firmer dollar, and the pullback in some measures of inflation expectations, although the recent firming in core inflation will be of some concern. However, downside risks to growth rendered by job declines, the continued housing market adjustments, tighter credit and financial market stress are expected to keep policy on hold for now. The baseline scenario is that the Fed will begin the tightening process toward the end of the first half of 2009, by which time it is expected that the housing market will stabilize and the labor market will be adding jobs at a decent pace. Gradual stability in the housing sector by the end of 2008 is a key element in this economic forecast. However, the single most important requirement for continued expansion is job growth. Easing in overall credit conditions is expected as clarity emerges on the path of the economy, the housing market, and the extent of financial institutions' losses. However, available credit will almost certainly remain significantly tighter than it was prior to the crisis.
