Economic Commentary

Economic growth continued its slow and steady pace of improvement over the month. The unemployment rate increased slightly but measures of consumer confidence and consumer spending improved over the month. Retail sales rose in September and sales of Apple's iPhone 5 had a significant impact. Nevertheless, even excluding electronics and online sales, growth in spending was strong. Because consumer spending increased faster than income, the savings rate declined from 3.7% to 3.3%, its lowest level since late 2011. Aside from corporate earnings disappointment, market sentiment was heavily influenced by the forthcoming US election and looming fiscal cliff, the developments in Europe, and Chinese growth. U.S. quarterly earnings results were poorly received, with slowing global demand blamed for weaker results. Of even greater concern was negative revenue growth, which has not been seen since 2009. Many companies also revised down earnings for the year citing economic uncertainty.

Recent strength in labor markets and consumer confidence are likely to drive growth during the fourth quarter. However, whether these trends can continue will be dependent on several factors. It is unlikely that consumers can continue to reduce savings further to sustain spending. Gasoline prices have also been a challenge to growth recently. The effects of Hurricane Sandy are too recent to be incorporated into consumer confidence measures, but are likely to impede growth in the near-term while benefiting in the future as reconstruction commences. That being said, anemic wage increases and the Fed's recent bias to increase accommodative policy suggest the Fed will continue asset purchases longer than current market expectations. Perhaps most important are the upcoming elections and the implications they will have on fiscal spending. The November's presidential election will not resolve the fiscal cliff, but will certainly be key in determining its impact. In the near term, the prevailing uncertainty will keep markets on edge and may continue depressing business spending as well as preventing significant acceleration in GDP growth. Expectations are for Congress to turn the cliff into more of a fiscal speed bump, though such a favorable outcome is far from guaranteed.
